Sierra Sage's Student Council Speaks Up!

Sierra Sage Residential Treatment values diversity and cultural awareness. With recent national events, it is as important as ever that student voices are respected and encouraged.

Student Council representatives are elected by their peers and they take this responsibility seriously. Student Council met last week to discuss protests and their ideas for action at Sierra Sage. The youth representatives discussed the news and issues with their peers and gathered their idea to improve diversity and cultural awareness. Youth were encouraged to reach out to local, state, and national organizations and government representatives to advocate for the change they need and want.

Two youth participated in the Nevada State Juvenile Justice subcommittee on Racial and Ethnic Disparities. The girls presented their viewpoint, experiences and ideas for change. Both students enjoyed the experience and stated they want to keep participating to advocate for change.
